Nurms Station was an electrical Training Center for young men who was interested in electrical engineering of any kind. Mr Nurms was a bachelor who came to Provo from some where in the eastern States.
He built a fine brick school and the young men lived there and studied there. They had good meals and lodging. When they graduated they were placed in some of the best jobs in the country. Arvin Scott who was Ethel ^{Scott} Spencer's brother from the Provo Second ward was one of these young men. He became famous for the building and designing of the Trylone and Perisphere at the Worlds Fair in New York in 1939. Ray & I went to New York at this time to meet Bob when he returned from a 2 1/2 year L.D.S. Mission in Germany. This Worlds Fair was one of the greatest experiences we ever had. Henry & Edith Haas lived there at this time & we stayed at their home at Queens ~~barrow~~. Emma Haucka went with us. We brot Bob home in the car. Grant Bleaks ^{brother} also came from a foreign mission, & the Beaks Traveled along at the same time we did and we kept track of each other traveling.
The Beaks were fine people and their son Grant ~~later~~ married Rivas daughter.
